Social Media, E-Mail and Text Message Communications Policy

It is our practice's policy that psychologists and office staff do not connect or communicate with current or former clients on any form of social media (e.g. Facebook, Linked In, Twitter, Snapchat or other social media). This policy keeps boundaries clear between the professional relationship at the office and the personal lives outside of the work setting. This also maintains appropriate boundaries within the therapeutic relationship during therapy and afterwards, particularly should the client decide to return to treatment at some point in the future.

In general, the best way to contact your psychologist is by calling the office. Confidential voice-mail is available in the event that the office is either closed or phone lines are busy. Clients may choose to communicate with the office via text message or e-mail. The confidentiality of text messages and e-mail cannot be guaranteed, and the client acknowledges the lack of confidentiality when choosing to communicate using these methods.

Please check below the way in which our office can reach you, with your permission, and with your understanding and acceptance that it may not be totally secure.
